Niantic Bay Boardwalk

Reconstruction Progress Report

Since Amtrak's replacement of the Niantic River Railroad Bridge started in April, 2010, progress has rapidly moved forward during day and night work shifts. The project remains on schedule for completion in Spring, 2013. Reconstructing the Niantic Bay Boardwalk (a.k.a. The Overlook), is seen here showing its concrete, sheet pile seawall. You will notice night activity along the sea wall marked by work lights seen as you drive on Main Street (Rt. 156). The top elevation of this seawall along the new beach-to-be, will support and protect the Overlook's 10 foot-wide walkway that will stretch 2,515 feet from the Niantic Railroad Bridge westward.
