Progress Report:

East Lyme's Overlook Park

R.S. De Santo, East Lyme Public Trust Foundation, Inc.

Photographed on May 3, 2013, at 12:27 pm, when the tide was approximately dead low, the photo above shows the eastern most entrance to Overlook Park once you exit the railroad underpass from Cini Park. The welcome sign you see in the photograph was funded by the state Department of Energy and Environmental Protection in 2004 through a grant to the East Lyme Public Trust Foundation. That sign was removed by Amtrak for safe keeping prior to demolition of the original boardwalk in 2010. The sign was returned to the park this year in early May, and is attached to the retaining wall that now forms the new bridge abutment on the western shore of the Niantic River.

The 12 foot wide concrete walkway extends west along the beach a total of 2,500 feet. It is seen here as it ascends from the beach sand to the level portion of that walkway. No longer a boardwalk, the walkway is now concrete and, much more resistant to the ocean's occasional battering, but the price of that staying power is the strain that it can play on your feet and legs if you don't invest in a good pair of walking shoes! On the other hand, if your locomotion is by wheelchair, your trip will be so smooth that you may even forget the wash-board surface over which you rattled on the original 2005-2010 boardwalk.
